

Psalm 121:1-3

I look upward to the hills.
From where does my help come?
² My help comes from the Lord the
Creator of heaven and earth.
³ May he not allow your foot to slip.
May your Protector not sleep.

Happy Spring!

This is such an exciting time of year. The rich smell of maple sugaring is all around. Birds are happily singing. Plants are starting to come out of winter's sleep. Of course, this is also mud season where trails are closed and mud abounds. This year we have also been dumped on by what locals call sugar snow.

We are excited to get back out and experience nature. We continue to create a Bible curriculum which is available for free at www.seektheson.org/bible-study/. Also, you will find podcasts of our outside adventures and nature on specific topics such as finding God in snow. We have discovered these programs make great group discussions or work for individual study. We are amazed at the incredible discussions that are happening.

We continue to carry out the mission of bringing the saving power of Jesus Christ to people affected by disabilities. One of our future podcasts will look at the various ways to navigate backwood trails. Using paper maps, gps devices and compasses. We will make it a priority to show various alternative tools to help those with vision loss. We then compare these maps of the backcountry with God's road map for us...the Bible. We will elaborate on the variety of ways to access the Bible regardless of disability.

We see struggles and brokenness in nature and are reminded of how God takes these struggles and makes beauty out of them. Think of a butterfly emerging from its cocoon. Struggle is essential in order for a beloved butterfly to become a functional creation.

As humans we at one point of life will struggle with some type of impairments. We want you to realize the suffering and pain that might come from this limitation will become just a chapter in your memoir. With God...we are made whole and wonderful through his love. Our faith in Jesus will give us the tools to navigate life similarly to how we need tools to assist us in navigating nature. Please check out our website for more info.
